

IADMS Infographic Award Competition

INTRODUCTION

In effort to promote the more widespread use of these visual displays of data, IADMS has developed an infographic award competition. The IADMS infographic award competition is run by the Promotion Committee in coordination with the Annual Conference. Inquiries and submissions for this competition are to be sent directly to socialmedia@iadms.org for review.

DESCRIPTION

An infographic can be used to display dance science concepts in an interesting, visual way that makes it easy to quickly understand. Infographics provide an interesting way to share evidence based information with other members of the dance science community. Infographics can be very useful ways to communicate information.

Anyone may submit an infographic for this competition by following the guidelines below:

- Select a topic relevant to the IADMS Mission Statement: We are committed to dancer's health and improving health through dance by offering and sharing educational events and a growing library of resources for those who serve dancers as well as referrals and services for the dance community at large.
- Develop an infographic that is aesthetically pleasing, innovative, and informative with a clear message.
- When designing or curating visuals for the infographic, keep the following in mind:
 - Any original visuals must have written permission for use and include the name(s) of the artist, photographer, or model;
 - Consider using a public domain or creative commons source of stock photos as they provide free licensing for non-profit organizations
- Submit a PNG of your infographic to the IADMS Promotion Committee (socialmedia@iadms.org) by given deadline.

Submissions will be reviewed by a panel of judges made up of IADMS Committee representatives and representation from the award sponsor(s). Any judge submitting an infographic will find a replacement judge from his or her committee. Finalists will be presented at the IADMS Annual Conference. IADMS reserves the right to publish submitted infographics on the IADMS webpage and use them for promotional and educational purposes.
